A Kerry supporter canvassing in Florida for the Bush vote was funny- Someone posing as a representative for an evil country getting pitched by DC lobbyists made me mad- An atheist at a Christian political camp was awkward- Guy who goes to a machine gun festival and shoots a ton of shit was strange- Someone who gets breast cancer and explains the treatments was sad- Someone who gets treated for depression and doesn't see a change wasn't very affecting- A married man undercover on a Russian bride tour was fascinating- An intern for US political propaganda in Iraq was enlightening- and finally Adam Davidson's essay on buying a house in Baghdad since he was spending so much time there.
