

Choice Words: Writers on Abortion By Annie Finch Choice Words booking This book included some content around the regrets of a handful of women but overall the majority of the stories (and poems) were of women who knew with absolute certainty that this was the right choice or their only choice. Choice wordsflow plugin Many of the stories were immensely sad and made me so angry at the suffering of so many women around the world and how hard the patriarchy has made it for women to have safe abortions. Words to describe your spirituality Too many woman have died and suffered just to have reproductive freedom! Poetry Nonfiction Spirituality I really enjoyed this book and recommend anyone interested in learning more about abortion read it. Choice wordsk karaoke Poetry Nonfiction Spirituality Very timely collection of essays poems plays and more which gives voice to the myriad of perspectives surrounding reproductive choice and abortion - the various reasons for it regrets ot sighs of relief a choice thought through or coerced by people and circumstances something forgotten by the passage of time or a feeling that haunts you forever - every kind of emotion is captured in these pages across countries and cultures and decades and I was completely moved by these stories and experiences. Choice words ithaca ny Poetry Nonfiction Spirituality I can't review this prose and verse anthology since it includes one of my poems (alongside work by eye-popping echelons including Margaret Atwood Gwendolyn Brooks Langston Hughes Ursula K. Choice words crossword clue Still I wanted to put down a few words about this anthology -- for example to say I appreciated how diverse it is its authors hailing from a relatively broad range of cultures and geographic locales. Choice words crossword clue 8 letters There are pieces dealing with the complex issue of sex-selective abortions in India; in one essay a journalist contrasts attitudes toward abortion in the former Soviet bloc with attitudes in the West. Choice words book I was riveted by Soniah Kamal's prose piece The Scarlet A based on her interviews of three female high school students in Pakistan who had had abortions and who tell of how the strong social stigma against premarital sex in their community complicated their experiences. Choice wordsk karaoke Also powerful was the excerpt from Mo Yan's prose work Frog in which a Communist Party chairwoman tries to force a mother of three daughters to have an abortion for the sake of national family planning: the woman's husband intervenes but it is soon clear that it is not because he respects his wife's bodily autonomy but because he dreads seeing his male line come to an end. Spirituality Choice words Some other pieces that stood out to me:The powerful subtly perfect sonnets (Amber) by Debra Bruce (She'd never known that word before -- injunction -- / until the lady outside the clinic. Choice words with samantha bee Also though the overwhelming majority of authors featured are women or girls (which to be clear is how a book on abortion should be designed) one of my favorite pieces was actually written by a man Langston Hughes! I was impressed by this book for two reasons: 1. Word choice anchor chart Speaking of I wasn't expecting the amounts of tenderness towards children born and unborn that these writings contained! The featured authors write of their choice to get an abortion not with spite or disgust but with love and with the desire to be a good mom which sometimes means not becoming a mom. EPub Choice wordscapes And here we are thirty years later...But most of all this book reminds me of to borrow a phrase from Tavi Gevinson the low-simmering rage women walk around with - we try to live our lives amongst the mess of what could happen what has happened what we must do what we can do. Nonfiction choice words list Of the 140 pieces that particularly stuck out:• "The Abortion I Didn't Want" Caitlin McDonnell• Cora Unashamed Langston Hughes• "The Pill Versus the Springfield Mine Disaster" Joanna C. Word choice lesson plan )" Emily Carr• "The Mother" Gwendolyn Brooks• "The Lady with the Lamp" Dorothy Parker• I Am Used to Keeping Secrets About My Body Josette Akresh-Gonzales• "Of The Missing Fifty Million" Shikha Malaviya• "Tweets from exile in Northern Ireland" Jenifer Hanratty• Excerpt from "Standing Ground" Ursula K. Choice Words booking Le Guin• "Farewell My Love" Ginette Paris• "Right to Life" Marge Piercy• "Being A Woman" Jennifer Goldwasser• Excerpt from "Frog" Mo Yan• A Birth Plan for Dying" Hanna Neuschwander• "Nicolette" Colette InezI am not in a Goodreads review going to proffer any solutions or calls for action but I will say that I really enjoyed this book. Tempura choice word hike Poetry Nonfiction Spirituality This landmark literary anthology of poems stories and literary
