

Cancer and The Lord's Prayer By Greg Anderson

It was during this process that the Lord in his infinite wisdom and mercy led Greg to what has been historically referred by the church through the ages to as The Lord's Prayer. He shares in the book that he knew of the prayer and even knew it but in light of what he was going through he had to learn more about the prayer and why God was drawing him to it as he had. And so Greg began to study and pray The Lord's Prayer wanting to enter into that most sacred of places where he was speaking with God and God was listening and then speaking to him through the prayer. Though the book Cancer & The Lord's Prayer is a small book in size consisting of only 95 pages.

Greg does not advocate praying the prayer like some sort of mystical mantra that you just repeat over and over again like some vain word. Greg takes us as the reader of his book much deeper than that into the heart of the prayer and what it means to truly pray it as our Heavenly Father would want us to. A word of caution to the theological debaters and spiritual nit pickers in the church who are always on the prowl looking for something to debate and argue about as pertaining to faith in our Lord Jesus Christ. Greg did not write his book as a theological treatise concerning prayer or other important Bible Doctrine (and let me state I firmly believe doctrine and truth are of the most absolute importance to Christians).

So when someone writes a book about any subject that appeals to me and they have lived it I want to read what they share whether I totally agree with them on all points concerning what they have written in their book or not because I know I can always learn something from every person I somehow connect with if I will but have my ears open to hear. No his book is about an ordinary Christian who went through Cancer and during the process could no longer settle for the rituals of his faith; but rather reached out- and actually lived out (to the very best of his human ability though led by God and guided by his faith in Jesus) the promises of Jesus.
